Moderator's Message

The Society for Critical Legal Studies (SCLS) is delighted to present this lucid commentary on the recent developments in different areas of our laws. While SCLS has been working with the general objectives of enhancement of learning thinking environment at our law schools, this attempt aims at the encouraging the research oriented legal education in Bangladesh. With a view to contributing towards larger research consciousness in the wider student mass of Bangladesh, SCLS Law Review attempts some critical but lucid analysis of some recent issues focusing the laws and legal literatures of Bangladesh. As a teacher of law, we have a long interest in pioneering and nurturing activity oriented legal education. I am confident that this publication will significantly contribute towards the direction.

I take the opportunity to thank the dedicated souls at SCLS who have been generously engaged in the editorial burden of the publication in spite of their immense load of regular studies. I also thank Mr M Jashim Ali Chowdhury, Academic Adviser of the Journal who has taken a lot of responsibilities for making this publication seeing the light of the day. I also thank the contributors from all over Bangladesh for their valuable contributions which have enriched it.

I am confident that the journal would draw wide readership and contribute significantly towards the research oriented legal studies among our students.

Editorial

This is the maiden publication of ‘SCLS Law Review’- a student edited journal of the volunteers of Society for Critical Legal Studies (SCLS). Within the one year of its advent SCLS has demonstrated its promises and endeavors to initiate a wind of change in the overall atmosphere of legal instruction and knowledge building. This Law Review would mark another step towards the desired destination.

The Editorial team has worked with a motto of spreading the quench of Research as well as critical legal thinking among all the students of this country. Before editorial tasks, the editorial body had consulted few Law Journals to make this issue of ‘SCLS Law Review’ a compact one.

The Editorial Body bestows deep gratitude to Mr. Nirmal Kumar Saha the Moderator of SCLS and Associate Professor, Department of Law, University of Chittagong, who have guided the team with logistic support. The team is indebted to Mr. M. Jashim Ali Chowdhury, Assistant Professor, Department of Law, University of Chittagong; who is the Ambassador of SCLS and the Academic Adviser of the SCLS Law Review.

The maiden issue of SCLS Law Review contains write-up on several legal issues like Rohingya Rights, Contempt of Court, Minority Rights Concerns, Digital Evidence, Labor Rights, White Collar Crimes, and Party Finance Laws etc. The Editorial Team remains particularly thankful to Honourable Justice Sheikh Hassan Arif, Justice Mahmudul Hoque, Barrister M Amir-Ul Islam sir for being generous to the SCLS Team. We also acknowledge with deep gratitude to Professor Dr Abdullah Al Faruque, former Dean of the Faculty of Law, University of Chittagong who has written for SCLS Law Review in spite of a lot of pressure upon him at Macquarie University, Australia. We also convey our gratitude to Professor Rakiba Nabi for sharing her excellent piece on Tribal Land Rights. Professor Dr S.M. Masum Billah’s thought on Representation and Democracy have illuminated the publication substantially. Advocate Amit Das Gupta’s concise state of the CPC would mark a handy summary of the vast subject. The research outcomes will surely serve the purposes of advocacy and critical thinking by clarifying the loopholes in the existing legal system that will gear up the emerging erudite capability of the students.

The Editorial team worked with a belief: “If we desire respect for the law, we must first make the law respectable.” SCLS Law Review would seek to elevate wisdom in every facet of our journey towards critical legal studies. We believe that wisdom can bring justice.
