Moderator's Message

Greetings from your moderator! It is my great pleasure to inform you that SCLS has endeavoured a timely initiative to publish the first Issue of Volume 5 of the 'SCLS Law Review'. The previous volumes have already been published in its regular publication process. I am indeed grateful to the contributors of this issue such as students, teachers, and legal professionals that mark an innovative input to heighten the quality of this new-fangled journal. I believe this volume will be a significant addition to the history of the journal led by a group of young legal minds committed to the success of this promising journal.

SCLS-a student led organization has contributed immensely to the standard of excellence that serves as a benchmark for academic evaluation. As a research-oriented organization, it has already established its stance towards creative thinking, drive to learn, openness to experience, intelligence and motivation. SCLS Law Review is a useful resource for our students and readers to build and excel their intellectual height, legal skills, social network connections and future collaborations. I must admit and thank the Editorial Board members for their wholeheartedness and sincere work to bring the journal into light. Moreover, we acknowledge the holistic services and potentials of Mr. M. Jashim Ali Chowdhury, ambassador of SCLS, the Editorial Board's academic adviser to every Issue of Law Review. I also appreciate the contribution of Chief Patron and other Patrons of SCLS for their worthwhile assistances and support.

I hope the Journal will uphold the continuity of our students' innovative scholarly efforts. On a positive note, we look forward to receiving the next issue filled with discoveries and innovations from this young energetic folks and making SCLS Law Review your journal of choice.

Moderator, Society for Critical Legal Studies

Editorial Note

Society for Critical Legal Studies (SCLS) is going to enlighten the legal enthusiasts with the first Issue of Volume 5 of "SCLS Law Review"; a student-edited Law Journal of the volunteers of SCLS. From the very beginning, SCLS has aimed to bring outward changes in the whole legal learning and knowledge building mechanism in Bangladesh. SCLS has already shown its commitment towards this target to achieve it, and so many schemes and plans were also launched accordingly. The Editorial Board believes this volume of Law Review would surely be another supplement in SCLS's efforts to reach its goal. The Editorial team started its journey with the motto of spreading the enthusiasm of research and creating a field of critical legal analysis among the law students' and professionals of this country.

SCLS always tries to follow the international research community's trend by arranging research conferences and symposiums for the interest of the researchers to get the- thoughts, views, and opinions of other researchers and participants; so that they can polish their work further. Following the trend, SCLS continued arranging Online Editorial Symposiums during the widespread Corona pandemic crisis as well as afterwards, where a bunch of legal minds from every corner of the country participated and presented their paper in the Symposium. Throughout the editorial symposiums, they enlightened themselves and others through a knowledge-sharing process.

SCLS Editorial Board expresses gratitude to the presenters and participants from different universities of the country. The Editorial body bestows deep gratitude to Dr. Rakiba Nabi, Professor, Department of Law, University of Chittagong, and the Moderator of SCLS, who has facilitated the team with logistical support. The team is also indebted to Mr. M. Jashim Ali Chowdhury, Lecturer of Department of Law, University of Hall, the Ambassador, and the Academic Advisor of SCLS Law Review for his valuable advice, constant guidance, and direction to the Editorial Board.

The first Issue of Volume 5 of SCLS Law Review contains write-up of several legal issues including a chronological study of Consumer Protection Acts, famous Roe vs Wade case, Public law compensation system, comparative study of Universalism and Cultural Relativism etc.

The Editorial Body remains thankful to the authors. Their contribution symbolizes that they feel the same level of interest and enthusiasm in the Legal Research. The research outcomes from such diversified personnel will surely promote the trend of critical thinking in the legal arena.

This Issue of SCLS Law Review has been published online on the official website of Society for Critical Legal Studies. The Editorial Board is determined to contribute both in the online and print versions in future editions.

The widespread circulation will contribute enrichment to the legal enthusiasts, thereby shall pay accolade to the Editorial Board, acknowledging the hard work of every member of the Editorial Team.

The Editorial Body shall welcome all sorts of comments, suggestions, and constructive criticisms.
